Pacific Southwest Minority Supplier Development Council announces Patricia Crenshaw as the new President and CEO

The Board of Directors endorses the following communication as we announce that after several months of executive search activity and interviews, we are happy to share the selection of Ms. Patricia Crenshaw as the President and CEO of the Pacific Southwest Minority Supplier Development Council.

Ms. Crenshaw officially accepted the leadership of the organization on April 1, 2020. With her experience with non-profits she understands the importance of corporate engagement and value for the Minority Business Owners. She is a minority business enterprise owner of Crenshaw Business Strategies & Solutions, a business and management consulting firm specializing in diversity and inclusion compliance, program management and project support, community engagement and public involvement.

Pat has been instrumental in running the day-to-day activities and leading the office staff in Arizona and San Diego since September 2019. She has many attributes that have contributed to strengthening the organization operations including a communication strategy and updating operational functions, and leading the staff to excel in their service to their constituents. She has been building relationships with the NMSDC key personnel in preparation for the 2020 National NMSDC Conference scheduled for October 25, 2020 in Phoenix.

Please join us in congratulating her in this new role and by providing your support to encourage growth and prosperity to the minority businesses she serves in this position.
